Academic affairs committee studying schedules, changes

By JASIE HOWLING
Staff Writer

Alternatives to Morehead State University's weekly class schedule, which is used by only a handful of schools across the country, are being studied by the Academic Affairs

Committee of the Faculty Senate. MSU President Herb F. Reinhard said, "The primary reason for such a change is to reduce the considerable absenteeism we now have in Friday classes."
Originally, such a change was hoped to be implemented this fall.

However, the committee will give its recommendations by the end of this semester and the change, if any is decided upon, will go into effect in the spring semester of 1986.
Two alternative schedules have been suggested by Vice President of Academic Affairs William Whitaker and Faculty Senate Chairman Steve Young said the matter had been turned over to committee to "generate different options" for consideration.

The two alternatives already suggested schedule 50 minute classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and one hour and 15 minute classes on Tuesday and Thursday.

On the "A" schedule, breaks between classes would be 10 minutes. Classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday would all begin on the hour and classes on Tuesday and Thursday would begin every hour and 15 minutes. Each class day would begin at 8 a.m. and end at 5 p.m.
On the "B" schedule, breaks between classes would be 15 minutes. Classes on Tuesday and Thursday would begin on the hour or half-hour and classes on Monday, Wednesday and Friday would begin every hour and five minutes. Again, class days would begin at 8 a.m. and end at 5 p.m.

The president's cabinet has unanimously recommended a combination of these schedules which is used by 10 percent of colleges and universities. The "A" schedule would be used on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and the "B" schedule would be used on Tuesday and Thursday so all classes would begin on the hour or on the half-hour. This would allow for 10 minute breaks on Monday, Wednesday and Friday and 15 minute breaks on Tuesday and Thursday.

President Reinhard said this recommended schedule "is easy for all to understand" and "it gives faculty and administrative administrators the greatest choice in scheduling four and five hour courses."

Regents vote scholarships to be worth more; renewable

Morehead State University's academic scholarships will be worth more and be renewable for four years.

The revamped program, which includes full scholarships for National Merit semi-finalists and finalists, was approved last Tuesday night by the Board of Regents.

President Herb F. Reinhard described the board's action as a "clear signal to all that academic quality is important at Morehead State and that we are aggressively seeking the best students possible."

At the top of the scholarship program is the Distinguished Scholar Award which provides tuition, fees, room, board and books to National Merit finalists. The grants will be worth about $3,000 to Kentucky students and about $5,500 to non-residents.

Presidential scholarships were increased from $1,200 to $2,500 a year and Regents' scholarships were upped from $800 to $1,000. Those mantaining specified grade point averages will keep their scholarships through four years of study.

Previously, most of MSU's academic scholarships were awarded for only the first year of enrollment.

The Regents directed MSU's Scholarship Committee to give special attention to high school valedictorians and salutatorians.

Admissions Director Al Bowen said details of the scholarship improvements would be disseminated to area high schools and two-year colleges as soon as possible.

"We are excited about the prospects of helping the brightest young people with these attractive scholarships," Bowen said. "The approval of better scholarships is a major commitment by the university to academic excellence."

'Elocution' studies being revived

By REGINA FLETCHER
Staff Writer

Morehead State University has started a new academic study in the department of communication called oral interpretation for the performance of literature, poems, short stories and folk tales.

Garry J. Baltanz, Oral Interpretation instructor from California State University was a guest professor in the area of interpretation at CSU and is working on his Ph.D. at Wayne State University in Detroit. He has directed two feature productions and an original adaptation of "Jungle." A portion of "Jungle" was videotaped and shown at the ninth International Colloquium on Communication and was one of the 15 presentations selected from the United States.

Oral Interpretation came from the ancient Greek era and academically got its push in the late 40s. It has not always been called Oral Interpretation, but was earlier called Elocution. Baltanz brought Oral Interpretation to MSU and considers it his purpose in life.

There are a number of students taking this course who seem to enjoy it. Baltanz has started an ensemble called Wordpeak which consists of four students: Claire E. Esham, Sonja Rhea McCoy, David Wyler Thompson and Joseph J. Twomey. The ensemble consists of people interested in speech activities and oral interpretation.

This is a new program which consists of analyzing literature and poetry. "This course reaches students how to decode information that has already been said," according to Baltanz. His hope is to have an Oral Interpretation Festival at Morehead State University. For next year he planned to direct a short story here on campus so that the students can get a feel of what the program is about.

Almost nine inches of snowfall last week resulted in the closing of Morehead State University's classes and non-essential activities at 1:00 Friday morning. This move was the first action taken because of inclement weather in seven years.

Bad weather results in cancellation last week

By ANNA EMANOFF
Staff Writer

The University called off classes for the first time in seven years Friday due to bad weather.

Officials said at 8 a.m. the conditions didn't seem to be threatening. But as the day progressed, it was decided to close school at 1:30 so the commuters and faculty could get home before the snow got worse.

Offices which remained open for emergency reasons included: Physical Plant; Safety and Security; Student Housing; Public Communications and Food Service.

The biggest problem caused by the abundance of snow was getting in and out of the parking area, according to Director of Safety and Security Gary Messer. Messer said, however, that most students on campus aren't moving their cars.

The last time the university closed due to bad weather conditions was in June, 1978, when a storm hit in the middle of the night.

The Cotton Club

Singer/songwriter Gene Cotton performed before a crowd at Morehead State University's Buthon Auditorium Monday evening. Cotton is best known for his songs like Sunday in Salem, Before My Heart Finds Out, and A Part of Me, a duet that he recorded with singer Kim Carnes. Cotton also spent most of his time at Morehead State University visiting classes, meeting with students, faculty and staff members, and speaking about the problems of world hunger.

Privacy Act offers some records protection; others exempted

By CHERYL SAUNDERS

When trying to locate a student on campus, the first thing you do is look in the student directory or call a university administrative office to get the student's phone number or campus address, which some students believe to be illegal but is not.

What many students don't know is that while certain information concerning them can be freely distributed, much of their record is protected by the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act of 1974.

The purpose of the privacy act is to promote governmental respect for the privacy of citizens by requiring all departments and agencies of the executive branch to observe certain constitutional rules in the computerization, collection, management, use and disclosure of personal information about individuals.

According to Gene Ravivier, registrar for MSU, directory information can be released through the official student directory or by several administrative offices on campus.

The privacy act defines directory information as: "the student's name, address, telephone listing, date and place of birth, major field of study, participation in officially recognized activities and sports, weight and height of members of athletic teams, dates of attendance, degrees, and the most recent previous educational agency or institution attended by the student."

Any students objecting to being released should notify the Bureau of Student Affairs to complete the necessary form forbidding such action.

"We are not permitted to answer transcript requests by telephone, to release academic information or social security numbers," said Ravivier.

In order to obtain an academic transcript, a student must complete an application with the registrar and return the next day to pick up the form. No identification is required unless the questionable doubt as to the person's identity, which seldom occurs. Ravivier said there are no problems to his knowledge with this process.

Access to the transcript file is maintained by the registrar, the associate registrar, and a data processing coordinator. These are the only three university officials authorized to make changes in the file. Passwords are changed monthly for security reasons.

Viewing privileges of transcript files are given to the academic vice president, the Financial Aid Office and the Graduate Admissions Office. These authorized personnel must provide positive identification and indicate reasons for each request for examination. They must also show cause for having legitimate educational interests to review students' records.

Any student, reserves the right to request and inspect any and all "official records, files and data directly related to the student." This does not include such records maintained by university law officials or medical, psychiatric or similar records used solely for treatment purposes.

The procedure for a student to inspect his or her records is to complete an application with the registrar, per-

Coppola adds 'jazz' to gangster film

By CLARY HINES
Staff Writer

The Cotton Club is a wild mixture of a 1930s Warner Bros. gangster film, MGM musical, historical documentary, romance, comedy and a touch of social comment. The basic story supposedly revolves around the employees and clientele, which include jazz greats like Duke Ellington and Cab Calloway, movie stars such as Gloria Swanson and James Cagney and gangsters Dutch Schultz and "Lucky" Luciano. The real plot of the film, however, has less to do with these historical personalities than the lives and loves of fictional characters: Dixie Dwyer (Richard Gere) and Sandman Williams (Gregory Hines).

The basic story revolves around Dwyer, a small-time musician who accidentally saves the life of racketeer Dutch Schultz. Schultz shows his gratitude by making Dwyer a small-time member of his gang, occupied mostly with playing at Dutch's parties, keeping an eye on his mistress (Diane Lane), and picking up Dutch's laundry. While this is going on a subplot revolves around Sandman Williams, who has been lauding their careers as dancers at the Cotton Club. As the brothers' act evolves into a musical, Sandman becomes involved with a singer at the club (Loretta McKee) who is trying to advance her career by paying for white.

The Cotton Club. Francis Coppola's portrait of the legendary Harlem night club where the finest talent of the Jazz Age entertained the era's most notorious gangsters. Pictured: Gregory Hines as Sandman Williams, Diane Lane as Vera Cucco and Richard Gere as Dixie Dwyer.

The story advances at a leisurely pace, with developments such as a gang war in Harlem, the violent murder of Dixie's brother, the reunion of the Williams brothers, and Dixie's going to Hollywood to become a movie star, all unfolding in a leisurely pace. After tons of plot development, the film progresses to a totally unconvincing ending that is totally out of tune with the rest of the film.

The Cotton Club is entertaining, mostly due to the recreational aspect of the 20s and 30s, as well as the engrossing direction of Francis Ford Coppola. He brings out the detail and energy of the world he is presenting, never descending to the trite and cliché to fill screen time.

The same can not be said of the various performances. Richard Gere as Dixie Dwyer remains static all the way through the film, never working up any tension with the rest of the cast, especially his leading lady Diane Lane. All her hard work to create a cold and enterprising mistress falls flat, resulting in a character who never evolves through the picture.

Much better is the supporting cast, especially Gregory Hines as Sandman Williams. Though never given a lot of screen time, dancing one of the most irritating aspects of the film is the constant cutting away from the big musical numbers, so that none are ever seen in their entirety. He manages a sympathetic and realistic portrayal of a young black dancer during less liberal times. James Remar gives a menacing performance as Dwight Schultz, that harkens back to the best work of George Raft and Edward G. Robinson. Giving the film its warmest and funniest moments are a Mutt and Jeff pair of gangsters, played by Bob Hovkins and Fred Gwynne.

Though not up to the standards of his best work, The Cotton Club does not disgrace the name of Francis Ford Coppola. Despite the sections of the story that ring false or don't work, enough of it does work and works beautifully enough to make this an absorbing and entertaining effort.

Beauty conquers the beast

Once again a crowd of about 35 was entertained by the Morehead State football team. No, they were not tearing up Fayette Stadium but rather Wertheim Gym.

For the past three years, the MSU football team has challenged the Lady Eagle Volleyball team to a grueling and sometimes hilarious rivalry match.

This year's team showed much improvement over the preceding ones. Coached by Jim McEllean, football coach, the football team pulled together 15 unfortunate players. Unfortunate because they lost again.

For the third consecutive year, the Lady Eagles passed, sent and spiked them off the court. The women lead two games to none before the men could realize that it was volleyball, very different from football. Once the men began to work together, with a little help from the referee Coach Jerry Myers, they dumped, slammed, carried and threw the ball over the net anyway it would go. Finally, a massive comeback. The game is tied 2-2.

Since the women decided to give their loyal fans what they came for, they proceeded to embarrass the football team by destroying their last chance for a win. The Lady Eagles brought life back into their play and thumped the men leaving nothing but praise to 4 Phased on their side of the court.

With a little more practice, the men may soon be able to give a better performance. But until then, the women will reign as the volleyball champions.

The women will admit that the men gave them a better game than in the past but they still couldn't prove to be the better sex.

MSU Players present
'A Company Of Wayward Saints'

The MSU Players have announced the cast list for their upcoming production of George Herman's "A Company Of Wayward Saints." This production will be presented on February 23, 24, and March 1 and 2 in the Kibbey Theater.

Starring will be Bill Nichols as Harlequin, Tim Stamm as Scapino, Eddie Figgins as Pantalone, Bryan

Dutton as Dottore, and Todd Thomas in the role of Capitano. Also in the cast are Carl Corbett, Julie Brigham, Melinda Kreef, and Tina Morton.

Directing will be Dr. Travis Lockhart, while Dr. Grimes will act as technical director assisted by Doug Salisbury. Serving as stage manager will be Tavia Biggs.

Costume design will be by Benita Bennett, with the masks used in the production designed by Bryan Dotson. Props master will be Barry Amburgey.

Original music for the play is being composed by Todd Tomfams.

The Kibbey Theater box office will begin accepting reservations one week before opening night. The price of admission will be $5.50 for adults, $2.00 for children of high school age or younger and admission will be free for MSU students with ID. Reservations may be made in person at the Kibbey box office or call 783-2170.

P.C. sponsors
computer dance

The Program Council is sponsoring a computer dance this Thursday from 8-11 p.m. in ADUC Grill. Students are urged to stop by the second floor of ADUC today and fill out their personal computer cards between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m.

Your answers to the supplied questions will determine a perfect date. Students will find out at the dance their mechanical match-up. P.C. urges students to dance at least once with their date but it's not a requirement.

Today is the last day to fill out the cards before cupid's computer dating service finds the perfect one for you.

Lady Eagles home record remains untarnished with win over Eastern

By PAM REEVES
Staff Writer

Supporting an unbeaten record at home, the Lady Eagles set out to continue their winning ways Saturday night in an OVC battle against rival Eastern Kentucky.

Sophomore guard Tiphanie Bates and senior forward Connie Appleman led MSU as they shot out for a 14-4 lead in the first half. ECU picked up the pace to tie the game at the half.

ECU's Carla Collier then hit two free throws to give ECU ahead 30-26 at the half.

"It was a very physical game, so we had to depend on several players to come through for us," said Coach Loretta Marlow.

The second half saw MSU race down court to even the game at 36-36 in a quick layup by center Loni Gullette. Junior guard Janice Towles then caught fire with eight consecutive points to open up a 49-42 MSU lead.

MSU and ECU played it close in the last few minutes of the game. But the Lady Eagles refused to fold. MSU led their ninth straight win 65-61.

"We knew what we had to do to win and went out to execute it well," said Janice Towles.

MSU was led by center Loni Gullette's 11 points. Guards Teresa Ruby, who continues to lead the OVC in assists, and Tiphanie Bates had 10 points each.

The Lady Eagles move 5-1 in the OVC. Also MSU moves into a third-place tie with ECU. Overall the Lady Eagles are 12-8.

MSU now travels on the road to play Youngstown State and Akron.

The Lady Eagles will return home on Feb. 9 against OVC leader Middle Tennessee. On Feb. 18 the Lady Eagles will face second place Tennessee Tech. Starting times for home games are 5 p.m.

Connie Appleman shoots for two in route to thousand point mark during the game against Akron.

Appleman scores 1000

Connie Appleman of MSU made her one-thousandth career point last Wednesday night as a Lady Eagle in a 69-60 victory over Radford State at home.

The win kept the Lady Eagles perfect home record alive at 8-0. They have won seven straight games. Radford took an early six-point lead with 17:10 to play in the first half, but the Lady Eagles came back to tie it at eight all with 16:01 remaining.

MSU led by as much as 13 points in the first half. Appleman's one-thousandth point came on a 17-foot jumpshot with 3:11 left in the half. The Lady Eagles led 33-22 at half-time, but increased the margin to 17 points within less than three minutes of the second half. Radford pulled within seven with 2:21 remaining but never got closer.

Appleman led all scorers with 18 points. Teammate Penny Teagarden was the leading rebounder with 19, and she added 16 points to the Eagles' score. Gullette had 13 rebounds and eight points. Teresa Ruby scored 11 points for the Lady Eagles.

Football

When Bill Baldrige took over the reins of the MSU football program on Dec. 13, 1983, he knew what had to be done to turn the program around.

"First step is to have a winning season," said Coach Baldrige. "From there, I want to build to the conference championship."

Baldrige brought a new offensive look to MSU that featured an aggressive passing game styled after the attack of the Cincinnati Bengals. The plan was very effective as MSU broke several school records.

Born in Morehead on April 19, 1944, the Baldrige family moved to Shelby, Ohio, shortly after his birth. He returned to MSU and received a bachelor's in health and physical education in 1968 after earning All-OVC honors in 1966, the last year MSU won the OVC title. Baldrige also holds a master's degree in health and physical education.

Baldrige played defensive end for MSU, where he was All-OVC second team in his junior and senior years.

MSU men's swim team tied Transylvania 56-56 last Tuesday at the AAC. Once again Coach Willey's team was led by Jeff Kleiner, who recorded victories in the 200 individual mile and 100 freestyle.

"Our team rode the occasion. This meet was a matter of inches," said Coach Willey.

With three women hurt, MSU lost to Trans's women. But Coach Willey was proud of the effort.

MSU was led by Nina Eyster, a sophomore real estate major from Morehead. Eyster posted wins in the 200 breaststroke and one meter diving. This makes Eyster winning her second consecutive diving event.

"Just recently, I can really feel my swimming improve," said Eyster. "I feel our men divers, who are just starting out, will be strong at the state meet."

MSU has improved its record to 2-5-1. The next meet will be away against Union on Feb. 5.

Last four minutes sees ECU down Eagles

By ERIC HICKMAN
Sports Editor

The battle between ECU and MSU is the oldest rivalry in the OVC. Last Saturday night at a snow-covered Academic Athletic Center, MSU lost the 114th meeting between the two schools 66-61.

With an enthusiastic crowd behind the Eagles, MSU jumped ahead early. Freshman guard Talbert Turner and sophomore center Bob McCann did most of the scoring in the first half.

Turner scored 18 points and McCann had 12 points in pace MSU to a 34-26 half-time lead. Statistics showed MSU lead ECU in field goal percentage by a little margin. It was the free throw percentage that told the first half story.

MSU shot 75 percent from the foul line while ECU shot a dismal 28 percent.

In the second half, Turner brought back the bench, outscoring MSU's bench, and MSU's inconsistency in scoring in the last four minutes sent the large crowd home disappointed once again.

The Eagles were led in scoring by Talbert Turner with 20 points. McCann scored 16 points and Rob Barker had eight points.

The Eagles record falls to a disappointing 1-7 in the OVC. Next, the Eagles will face the only team they recorded a win against in the OVC, Youngstown State, on the road.

MSU will also face Akron on the road.

The Eagles will return home on Feb. 16 against Middle Tennessee Tech. Starting times for home games will be 7:30 p.m.
